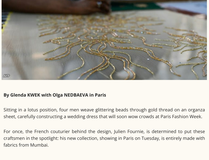
The Mumbai atelier that's the secret workshop of top French fashion

January 24, 2023
BUSINESSWORLD



By Glenda KWEK with Olga NEDBAEVA in Paris

Sitting in a lotus position, four men weave glittering beads through gold thread on an organza sheet, carefully constructing a wedding dress that will soon wow crowds at Paris Fashion Week.

For once, the French couturier behind the design, Julien Fournie, is determined to put these craftsmen in the spotlight; his new collection, showing in Paris on Tuesday, is entirely made with fabrics from Mumbai.

ADVERTISEMENT

Patement Sécurisé

He says a sort of "design imperialism" means that French fashion houses often play down the fact that their fabrics are made outside France.

"The houses which don't admit it are perhaps afraid of losing their clientele," Fournie told AFP.

But that is absurd, he continued.

ADVERTISEMENT

Maison FT

"India is number one in the world in embroidery. It's ancestral. They've been dressing maharajas in gold-embroidered outfits since the 16th century."

Fournie works with a company called Creations By Shanagar (meaning "to adorn" in Sanskrit), housed in a non-descript beige building near Mumbai's international airport.

ADVERTISEMENT

Hotels

Dozens of men in grey polo shirts sit cross-legged on cushions, heads bent over large sheaths of fabric. There is silence but for the clicking of needles and beads, the whirl of ceiling fans, and the occasional plane overhead.

-'A lot of fantasy'-

For decades, they have played an essential but unsung role in the fashion industries of Europe, Japan and the United States.

"I like working with Julien because he is another master craftsperson who knows his subject very well," said director Chetan Desai, 55.

"He has a lot of fantasy. He comes up with his own concepts and I have to translate those ideas into embroidery.

"It has been a very challenging experience and at the same time, it has been very fruitful," he added.

Back in France, Fournie sends the compliments back.

"What they know how to do better than anyone is to embroider with degraded gold thread, passing it through transparent beads to create colour gradients. It's unprecedented," he said.

It gives silk an aged, elegant look for wedding dresses that "shine, but not too much".

"Haute couture customers don't want to look like a Christmas tree," he added.

"I've worked with great French embroiderers and each time it's complicated. Everyone wants to put in their own ideas and you never get exactly what you want."

-Star clients-

Desai's father set up Creations By Shanagar in the 1960s as a workshop for handmade and embroidered saris.

In the 1990s, Desai looked further afield to France, partnering with Franco-Tunisian designer Azzedine Alaia on dresses that ultimately graced the likes of Naomi Campbell.

He does not divulge the current clients on his books but his past roster gives a sense of the high end: Fournie, Paris designer Alexandre Vauthier, Polly Yamamoto and Donna Karan.

Even Hollywood came knocking, with Shanagar helping design Nicole Kidman's costumes for the 2001 hit "Moulin Rouge".

The atelier attracts workers from across India, such as Biswajit Patra, 31, who has been working here since he was 16.

"I learned the trade in my village near Kolkata because my father was doing the same job and my brother and sister are also doing this job," he said.

Among their unique ideas is a way of rolling up pieces of tulle to make embroidered flowers.

"They have a range of techniques that we don't have here," said Jean-Paul Cauvin, director of Fournie's house in France.

One of the most delicate jobs is preparing the fabric once it arrives from India and heads for the workshop where it will be assembled into the dresses.

It is Fournie himself who irons out the fabric.

"Sixty percent of haute couture is ironing," he said with a smile. — Agence France-Presse

Related News Tags: fashion, lotus, Paris Fashion Week, The Mumbai

0 comments

Sort by Oldest

Add a comment...

Facebook Comments Plugin

PREVIOUS
Search upbeat after China ends zero-Covid policy

NEXT
Newly-retired Bale to play at golf's Pebble Beach event

You may also like

Bilyonaryo on CNN
Veteran journalist Ces Drilon, with CNN Philippines President Benjamin V. Ramos, and officials of Progs Management Corp. sign a blockbime contract agreement for the airing of "Usapang Bilyonaryo" - a profile feature show starting January 16. - CNN Philippines

Filipino clothing brand seeks to produce shirts inspired by classic 999 blankets
Remember that time that Filipino retreats rugs made it to the pages of Vogue? Well, the high-end bauahan seemed to be just the tip of the iceberg when it comes to tuning up classic reminders of our childhood days.

'Avatar' sequel now ranks fourth all-time in global sales
Avatar: The Way of Water" continued a record run this weekend in North America, taking in an estimated $15.3 million this weekend in North American theaters to make it the fourth-highest global grosser of all time.

'Where's the money gone?' Jamaicans ask after Bolt fraud case
It is the question on the lips of every Jamaican — and none more so than the country's most famous athlete, eight-time Olympic gold medal sprinter Usain Bolt.

'Drought' has New Yorkers asking: 'Where's the snow?'
The view of New York is wintertime mainstays up images of Manhattan's Times Square and Central Park shrouded in snow. Not this year.

Italian De Sarno appointed Gucci creative director
Sabato DeSarno, the Sarno has been appointed creative director at Gucci, the luxury label and parent group Kering announced on Saturday.

Read more Lifestyle stories

Recommended from

→ Abogado
Another immature-witness comes forward vs Barangay, Ramulla confirms

→ Abogado
Cayayang confirms Bantag looking for Yamashita treasure

→ Politiko
Paolo Duterte pushes for better employment terms, benefits for security guards

→ Politiko
Romualdez: 'We can build on our stellar economic performance'

→ Bankero
China Bank receives corporate governance awards

CES LA VIE! by Ces Drilon

Who's Who at ART SG
January 20, 2023
Art SG kicked off today with art world legends and collectors showing up with extra vigor after a two-year delay due to the pandemic.

Read More »

Old rich Pinoys: Antonio R. Roxas de Ayala master of the hunt, consummate outdoorsman, art collector
January 13, 2023
This week's CeLa Vie goes way to Toto Gonzalez, writer and lifelong student of Philippine and world history.

Read More »

Revenge spending brings Sab French resto Metrozone back in the groove
December 30, 2022
The opening of the modern French restaurant Metrozone in Makati in 2019 by chef Miko Calo and her partners was a roaring success.

Read More »

East-West Seed: Growing and eating our way to progress via vegetables
December 23, 2022
For the past 40 years, East-West Seed Philippines has been at the forefront of developing high-quality vegetable seeds suited for tropical conditions. From its humble beginnings in Lipa City, Batangas, the company has grown to export products that have reached various parts of Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Read More »

Homage to Lola: Cris Patwa bottles farm memories with the help of Brad Pitt
December 16, 2022
The endeavor is deeply personal. The launch of the brand in January this year coincided with the loss of her grandmother who inspired the essence of Encore, Chris Vila, Pamela Gavina Abuyen, was a farmer in Davao.

Read More »

Pandan for the palate: Chele Gonzalez opens seafood restaurant at P2B Aqua Boracay luxury resort
December 9, 2022
Chele has's interior, designed by Ed Calma, is a feast for the eyes. It evokes the serenity of Boracay's world-famous beach with tones of blue and green, as well as neutral accents. The walls come alive with the subtly lit, coral-like adornments.

Read More »

Plastic not fantastic: Boycott the 1000-Peso polymer bank note – Maribel Ongpin
December 2, 2022
Maribel Ongpin is making a bold plea to Filipinos as she pushes for the return of abaca-made Philippine banknotes.

Read More »

Usapang Bilyonaryo by Ces Drilon

'Usapang Bilyonaryo' is a digital-first, hybrid magazine show hosted and produced by veteran broadcast journalist Ces Drilon-Drilon in cooperation with the Bilyonaryo.com team. Its 30-minute TV cut airs on CNN Philippines at 9:30 p.m. every Monday, starting January 16. The full version or producer's cut of each episode, as well as interview spillies, will be posted on Bilyonaryo.com's Youtube and Facebook accounts.

In cooperation with

MEGAWORLD

Brought to you in part by

RLC RESIDENCES

Share this!

Advertisements

World of